

Product Spotlight

A GOOD IMPRESSION

ASI Research calculates the average number of impressions for each promotional product category by multiplying the average length of time consumers keep a given product by the frequency of its usage and how many people they come in contact with while using it. In the U.S., fleece and jackets are the product category with the highest number of impressions.

